A: The most well-known universal map is the USGS National Map. This contains a TMS for all 50 states, and also includes Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. One of the most important things to keep in mind when talking about the productivity of your team is that "it's not just about you". Getting everyone on the team to be producing is a big deal, but it's also a necessary part of making sure the work you get is done on time and on budget. It's particularly important to be thinking about and discussing whether your team is really meeting its own goals. But you also need to be aware of your own impact on the team's productivity, because much of your time can be better spent working on your own tasks than helping others on theirs. It's important to understand your own productivity and how it can impact your team's, but it's also important to understand how you and your team interact with other people, how you can best support their work, and how your work benefits other people. We have a free webinar coming up soon to help bring all of these important concepts together. In this webinar, we'll cover: How to analyse your team's productivity Defining productivity What strategies can help your team be more productive How you can use your skills and knowledge to be more productive We'll also look at some ways you can support other people's productivity, such as providing tools, building trust, understanding how other people work and working together. This webinar is for anyone who is thinking about improving their team's productivity. Gain access to all of our webinars with a free trial. You can watch for free, or subscribe to this course and get all the future videos. Your mind is like a parachute – it works best when it's open I'm not saying that you shouldn't be disciplined in the way you approach life and the way you think about things. Being disciplined to the way you think about things is a powerful aid to your health, happiness and success. Because, when you approach life with a clear-eyed view of reality, you're always working towards the same thing: Live by the end and die by the end.
