Update: The problem in this case is the presence of the .(dot) in the search term. I used the following regex.? I notice the match is after the 4th letter of the word: $pattern = '/^+(?:(.+)?)?/'; preg_match_all($pattern, $raw, $matches); In this case of the HTML scraping the string came in as $1" $3en : "\ $3el\ " \ " $3en!\ $2en.2e $3en : "\ $3en!\ $2en." for ... the search string was sufficient I guess. Q: how to use if statement in bash script #!/bin/bash start_number=$1 stop_number=$2 end_number=$3 while true do if [$start_number = $end_number] then /Applications/XAMPP/xamppfiles/bin/php -f /home/ben/XAMPP/htdocs/sample/run.php $start_number echo "hi" fi sleep 0.5 done I want to run a script with the user entering start and end number. But if start number is greater than end number the script should start and stop at the respective numbers. for eg I want to execute the script like this. ./script.sh 10 20 30 and the script should stop at the respective number. A: There is no need for while statement. #!/bin/bash start_number=$1 stop_number=$2 end_number=$3 if [$start_number == $end_number] then /Applications/XAMPP/xamppfiles/bin/php -f /home/ben/XAMPP/htdocs/sample/run.php $start_number echo

1 5 April 1, 2019 df76b833ed I didn't get a pass in my first year of school (which I love) but when I did I got something called 'honor roll' and a bit of recognition as a 'rising star'. All because I was the best at something (not sure what was voted on...) Benjtb702018.
